What has changed?

As a result of the impact of Covid-19 on schools and pupils the Kent test will now take place on Thursday, October 15 for pupils who attend a Kent school and from Saturday, October 17 for all other students.

Kent parents are now offered two additional preferences on their child's secondary school application this year, an increase from four to six, to account for the later release of Kent Test results.

Six Preferences Explained

As the Kent Test is taking place later than usual this year, parents will need to list their preferred schools before they know their child's result. If a child will be taking the Kent Test, parents should put their preferred grammar schools as the top preferences so that the schools can consider the application if the child qualifies.

If the child doesn't qualify for grammar school, those preferences will not be considered, but the others will. Parents are therefore advised to name at least one school on the application form that is not a Grammar school. Naming this school as the last preference will ensure that it is not offered if a higher preference school can be offered instead.

Extended deadline – Friday 11 December

The closing date for applications is Monday 2nd November. This is a deadline that is set in legislation, however KCC allows parents to make changes to their application up until Friday 11th December. That means even with Kent Test results being available later this year parents still have the opportunity to change their preferences.

This includes changing school preferences (to accommodate for the results of the Kent Test) along with any address changes etc.

Parents must email kentonlineadmissions@kent.gov.uk with the details of any changes, ensuring that they contact us with the same email address used for their application.

Not registered for the Kent test?

We understand there will be parents who have not registered for the Kent test, for those parents there are two options;

- Name Kent grammar school(s) on the secondary application form. This will give parents the right of appeal in March 2021 and the grammar school will arrange for the child to be tested before the hearing.
- Or apply directly to Kent grammar schools after 21 April 2021 and the school will arrange testing at this stage.
